Fund commentary

The Fund generated a positive return in September amidst continued concerns over the health of the US labour market led to yields falling. The fund's duration was reduced from 4.8 to 4.6 years.

A weak nonfarm payrolls report — showing a gain of just 22,000 jobs — and revisions indicating a contraction in overall employment over the past three months triggered a notable rally in U.S. Treasuries. The data also served as a clear catalyst for the FOMC's decision to cut interest rates by 25bps, its first reduction this year. Although the decision was nearly unanimous, the updated dot plot highlighted growing uncertainty around the future policy path. The Treasury curve bull-flattened over the month, with two-year yields ending 1bp lower despite the cut, while 10-year and 30-year yields declined 8bps and 20bps, respectively. European government bond markets underperformed Treasuries in September, though yield curves flattened in sympathy with the U.S. Persistent inflation led the ECB to maintain interest rates, as expected, while French political turmoil continued to weigh on investor sentiment. By month-end, two-year Bund yields had risen 8bps, while 30-year yields fell 6bps. France was not alone in facing political instability. In the U.K., Deputy Prime Minister Angela Rayner resigned after failing to correctly pay property tax on her private residence, further straining the Labour government as it contends with fiscal constraints, stagnant growth, and a weakening labour market. Gilt yields mirrored Bund movements, with two-year yields up 4bps and 30-year yields down 9bps. Credit spreads fell to multi-decade tightness in September while falling Treasury yields further supported returns in credit products, in particular US assets. Higher beta sectors performed well but generally underperformed lower beta, more interest rate sensitive assets. The U.S. automotive sector has been hit hard by the combination of higher interest rates, elevated tariffs, and deteriorating conditions among lower-income consumers. September brought several notable warning signs: CarMax, the country's largest used-car retailer, saw its stock plunge after reporting weak sales and profits; Tricolor, a subprime auto lender and dealer, filed for bankruptcy amid allegations of fraud; and auto-parts supplier First Brands Group filed for Chapter 11, sending its loans sharply lower. In contrast, credit markets also showed signs of resilience. Oracle raised $18bn in the second-largest corporate deal of the year as the company increased spending to keep pace with the AI boom. With its equity value having nearly doubled year-to-date, creditors welcomed the new issuance, which drew peak demand of more than $88bn. Other notable developments in September included Kraft Heinz's decision to split into two separate companies, effectively unwinding the decade-old merger that created the group. Meanwhile, the largest leveraged buyout in history — a $55bn acquisition of Electronic Arts, including a $20bn debt commitment — pushed the company's bonds higher on expectations that a change-of-control covenant would be triggered.

Market commentary

September data signaled a cooling labor market and persistent but easing inflation. Nonfarm payrolls rose just 22,000, and unemployment climbed to 4.3%, the highest since 2021. Revisions showed June employment contracted for the first time since 2020. Job openings and hiring declined, though layoffs remained low. Inflation was mixed: headline CPI rose 0.4% MoM, while core CPI held at 3.1% YoY, with underlying measures showing easing pressures, especially in core goods. Core PCE stayed at 2.9%. Consumer sentiment and confidence dropped to multi-month lows, weighed down by job concerns and sticky inflation expectations. Despite this, retail sales and personal spending remained firm, prompting a Q2 GDP revision to 3.8% annualized—its strongest pace in nearly two years.

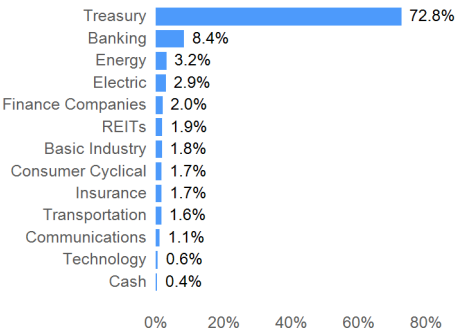

In response, the Federal Reserve cut rates by 25bps to 4–4.25%, with one dissent favoring a larger cut—Stephen Miran, recently confirmed. The Fed signaled caution, projecting two more cuts this year, though some members opposed further easing. Independence concerns lingered amid legal challenges to board appointments and political pressure. On trade, the U.S. imposed tariffs on pharmaceuticals, trucks, and furniture, while exempting gold, tungsten, and uranium. EU auto tariffs were lowered to 15% under a new deal. A $100,000 H-1B visa fee drew legal challenges.

Eurozone inflation rose to 2.1%, with core steady at 2.3%. The ECB held rates at 2%, stressing data dependence. Private sector growth hit a 16-month high, though German manufacturing stayed weak. Italy and Spain saw rating upgrades, while France faced political instability and two downgrades. In the UK, GDP was flat, employment fell slightly, and inflation held at 3.8%. The BoE kept rates at 4%, slowed QT, and adjusted bond sales to reduce volatility. Japan maintained rates at 0.5%, signaled ETF reductions, and hinted at hikes amid sticky inflation and political change. Canada's labor market weakened, supporting a 25bp BoC cut to 2.5%. Australia's GDP beat forecasts, home prices rose again, and the RBA held rates at 3.6%, citing persistent inflation and a tight labor market.
